CSIR-National Environmental Engineering Research Institute (CSIR-NEERI) will host a two-day international workshop on silicone assessment in environmental matrices which will conclude on Tuesday.

This workshop is aimed at enhancing India's capabilities in assessing and managing silicones in the environment. Leading experts, researchers, and practitioners from around the world will come together to share knowledge, techniques, and best practices for the accurate detection and analysis of silicones in environmental samples, which is critical for environmental monitoring and regulatory compliance.
